Anything can happen or nothing can happen!!!! I cant believe that in the most crucial week of the year, I have Jefferson, Wade, Kirilenko and West shutting down. What is going on? I wish I could also take a few days off just to rest up.

My season has now come down to my dependence on Darko getting some blocks and Marvin Williams getting alot of rebounds.

We got to talk to D. Stern about this.

ALOT of players "shutting it down" for the last 2 games. Is D. Stern going to step in and stop this madness next year? Forget ticket holders that need refunds to watch benchwarmers run around - doesn't he realize how these decisions wreak havoc on a year's worth of blood, sweat and statistical analysis!

Anything can happen over the next 2 nights.....stay tuned.

Speaking of heart, my hat goes off to Max Yusim (Oh Mahki team owner) who refuses to take his foot off of the gas and slow down as we come into the home stretch. He has got the peddle to the metal. Did anyone notice that he input 19 guys from pool that he was interested in picking up. Max, how did you determine an order of pickup for 19 guys?

My guys ran out of steam. kirilenko probably out for last two games with back spasms and David West has been very sporadic down the stretch with sprained ankles. Darco was not the stud for me tonight although he did get me one block that could be crucial come Wednesday night.

MBA Owners,

It appears that our MBA season will once again have several year-end positions determined by the final night's outcomes.

Therefore, we will continue our annual tradition of getting together to enjoy the last night of the season at a sports bar.

This year the location will be the Fox Sports Bar at the Staples Center.

It opens at 5:30 - so we will plan to get a table together at that point, and call in to Larry and Max on speakerphone to get live stats on their computer.

That night the Lakers host the NO Hornets - so Wish List owner Jeff Wishengrad and I have pooled our tickets, and we can host 4 other owners that evening.

Please RSVP to me - so we know how many tickets we will need. IF we need more - I have access to 2 more seats that are right in front of mine.

Evening agenda, WED 4/19:

5:25 Arrival at Fox Sports Bar, Staples Center

5:30-8:30 Dinner and game analysis (stats provided by Larry and Max via speakerphone in SF).

8:30-10:00 Watch second half of Lakers game.

10:00-10:30 Presentation of the trophy to the 2005-6 Champion

Look forward to seeing you there!
